INTRODUCTORY.

With this issue of the Bloomington City Directory we present the first volume issued by us, and it is with no small degree of satisfaction we take in the thought that it is worthy the name it bears.

It has always been our aim to issue works that would be a credit to the city where issued, and by comparing each new volume with the preceding one they will always be found an improvement over them.

The population of Bloomington, including Normal and Stevensonville, according to our estimate, is 24,500. We do not believe in stating that the population is more than it really is, like a great many publishers do, in order to cover up the deficiencies in the work proper by getting "puffs" on this point alone.

We desire to return our thanks to our patrons and hope to place them, and a great many others, on our list again in 1886.
